Agriculture, Far Western University, Kailali, Nepal

Submission of papers for April 2024 Issue

Journal of Agriculture and Resource Management (JARM), a double-blind peer-reviewed journal is the flagship journal of School of Agriculture / Faculty of Agriculture, Far Western University. It is published biannually in April and October, both online and print version. Papers can be submitted throughout the year and will be published online as and when accepted. However, the print version will be published as scheduled.

JARM now calls for articles to be published in April 2024. Research related with agriculture and rural development issues, especially in the developing economies will be considered for publication. All submitted articles will go through the Editorial Review process for first level of screening and decision will be provided approximately within one (1) week on it. All manuscripts adhering with the Author's Guidelines and within the Scope of the Journal will enter the Review process after editorial screening. Manuscripts will then undergo double-blind peer review process and the decision of Reviewers will be final for acceptance/rejection. The decision from reviewers could be categorized as: (i) Accepted without any changes; (ii) Accepted with Minor changes; (iii) Accepted with Major changes; and (iv) Rejected. For major/minor changes, authors need to revise as per the Reviewer's comments and suggestions and the decision for final acceptance will be provided after receiving improved version of the manuscript. The whole process may take 1-2 months in total. All the accepted articles will be published both online and in print version. Author's Guidelines and further information are available at <http://agriculture.fwu.edu.np/> or can be requested from agriculture.journal@fwu.edu.np

Last date of submission: February 29, 2024
